Celebrating 100 Years of Music

What a year we had in 2020-21!

Despite the COVID-19 pandemic, we produced five operas and two ballets that provided valuable experience for our talented students, and now we are thrilled to be able to invite you to a full season of IU Jacobs School of Music productions during our Conrad Prebys Centennial Performance Season—celebrating the school’s one-hundredth anniversary!

And what better way to kick off than with a new production of Mozart’s beloved The Magic Flute? Join Tamino and Papageno as they set out to rescue Pamina, daughter of the infamous Queen of the Night.

Then dance with us into Fall Ballet: A Leap Forward—highlighted by Chaconne, an original work by our own Sasha Janes—before we present Monteverdi’s last opera, The Coronation of Poppea, in Auer Hall for one weekend only.

Don’t miss the hilarious Falstaff, iconic The Nutcracker, and eclectic Holiday Celebration, featuring musicians from across the Jacobs School, as 2021 comes to a close.

Spring begins with an evening of William Grant Still. His opera Highway 1, USA is partnered with a new ballet, 19, choreographed by Sasha Janes to Still’s music. Each will be a first for Jacobs.

Puccini’s beautiful La Rondine followed by the historical Spring Ballet: A Look Back and the ever-popular H.M.S. Pinafore by Gilbert and Sullivan complete the opera and ballet season.

Be sure to join us for our other spring offerings as well. Jacobs Live at the Movies will finally premiere, featuring a live orchestra accompanying some classic Hollywood entertainment, and the Singing Hoosiers will perform their Spring Concert, while the Jazz Celebration will surely satisfy with an evening of jazzy favorites.

And to top it all off, we have brand new seats in the Musical Arts Center! So please let us help you take a load off—in more ways than one.

We hope you'll celebrate our centennial season with us as we return to presenting all the incredible musical talent in the Jacobs School of Music live and in person. We can't wait to welcome you back!

The Magic Flute premiered on September 30, 1791, at a Viennese suburban theater, Theater auf der Wieden, with a libretto by Emanuel Schikaneder and music by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. The theater was built in 1787 and was used for opera performances until 1801. As a librettist, a comic actor, and the theater's impresario, Schikaneder wrote librettos and created original roles on stage for several German singspiels ("plays with music") premiered at Theater auf der Wieden. Adapted from Lulu, oder die Zauberflöte ("Lulu, or the Magic Flute") from Christoph Martin Wieland's fairy-tale collection Dschinnistan, Schikaneder and Mozart's The Magic Flute belonged to Theater auf der Wieden's fairy-tale-singspiel tradition, which usually featured a fairy-tale world with non-human characters, objects with magical powers, and a quest completed by a noble hero and his travel companion.

There are traditionally two pairs of main characters in late-eighteenth-century operas, a serious noble couple and a comic peasant couple. In The Magic Flute, Tamino and Pamina are the noble couple; Papageno and Papagena are the comic peasants. Tamino's and Pamina's arias are about absent lovers and unrequited love. Early in Act I, in his aria "Dies Bildnis ist bezaubernd schön," Tamino sings of his affection for Pamina when looking at her portrait. Late in Act II, in her aria "Ach, ich fühl's," Pamina expresses grief, believing that Tamino has abandoned her. Juxtaposed with Tamino and Pamina's profound love story, the one between Papageno and Papagena is comical, with Papagena first appearing in disguise as an old lady. In their short duet "Pa, pa, pa" in the Act II finale, Mozart set the music with patter declamation to provide comical effects suitable for the couple.

Schikaneder often created magical objects in his fairy-tale librettos. In The Magic Flute, they are the flute and the glockenspiel. When Tamino and Papageno play these magical instruments, the music is part of the story, heard not only by audience members in the theater, but also by characters on stage. Schikaneder also wrote non-human characters for his fairy-tale worlds, usually consisting of an animal role, genies, and opposing personages with godly or magical powers.

A Papagei (German for "parrot") who does not stop chattering, Papageno is both a bird-catcher and bird like, making him the "animal character" of The Magic Flute. This is a type often associated with the travel companion in Schikaneder's fairy-tale quests. Papageno's association with animals heightens the differences in social status and character between him and Tamino. Throughout The Magic Flute, the two display contrasting wishes and desires. Tamino longs for love and seeks truth from the Initiates, whereas Papageno only wants food, drink, and a wife. Tamino's high-minded wishes and Papageno's corporeal desires reflect their respective roles and status. Unlike Tamino, a prince, Papageno has to work as a bird-catcher for the Queen in exchange for sustenance. As a peasant for whom starvation and thirst can be of considerable concern, Papageno's proletarian identity becomes a reason for his desires during his quest with Tamino.

Mozart wrote distinct musical styles for the genies and godly characters in The Magic Flute. The three boys are the genies in this opera. When they appear in the Act I finale, Act II trio, and Act II finale, their simple and tuneful melodies feature dotted rhythms in moderate tempi and are accompanied by combinations of flutes, clarinets, and bassoons, a type of instrumentation for the genies also seen in other fairy-tale singspiels such as Der Stein der Weisen. The godly characters with ruling powers in The Magic Flute are the Queen of the Night and Sarastro, the leader of the Initiates and priest to the gods Osiris and Isis. For Sarastro, Mozart wrote music that sounds devotional. Sarastro's aria with chorus at the beginning of Act II depicts a religious ceremony. In this scene, Mozart included trombones in the orchestration, instruments typically used in late-eighteenth-century operas for otherworldly beings, to signify the presence of the gods Osiris and Isis. Mozart set Sarastro's other aria, "In diesen heiligen Hallen," as a strophic hymn, assigning the same music to two stanzas of text, in slow tempo and with simple phrase structures.

The Queen of the Night's arias are about her divine status as the sovereign of her realm. During the Queen's recitative and aria in Act I, no other character on stage speaks or sings. Her singular vocal presence shows her dominion. Her famous aria in Act II, "Der Hölle Rache kocht in meinem Herzen," is an expression of her fury. In both arias, Mozart wrote long coloratura flourishes in the highest range of the soprano voice to display the extremes of vocal timbre and highlight the Queen's ruling power as a female sovereign.

Monostatos's music is in the stilo alla turca, a style meant to evoke Janissary band music, the music of the Turkish military and state ceremonies. Catered to the audience's fondness for the "exotic" but with little connection to the actual Ottoman Empire, "Turkish" characters were portrayed in a distorted fashion as violent and sexually driven. Yet they were also comic roles. Mozart combined drums, piccolos, and cymbals with simple harmonies, rhythms, and textures for the stilo alla turca. The deliberately loud, simplified, and even absurd sounds of "Turkish" music made the Ottomans appear less threatening to an Austrian audience, who feared the military threat of the Ottoman Empire.

In The Magic Flute, representations of social classes, genders, and ethnicities were products of eighteenth-century views distant from twenty-first-century values. The characters and music display conventional traits of late-eighteenth-century operas and Theater auf der Wieden's fairy-tale singspiels. However, these conventionalities did not undermine the spectacle of The Magic Flute, but rather demonstrated Mozart's subtle and extraordinary command of musical styles for character portrayals.

Synopsis

Act I

As the story begins, Prince Tamino is fleeing from a giant serpent when Three Ladies, the servants of the Queen of the Night, appear and save him. They are immediately taken by the handsome young prince. When they leave to bring word to their mistress, Papageno, a bird catcher, shows up. After introducing himself, he lies to Tamino that he is the one who rescued him. When the Three Ladies return, they first punish Papageno for lying and then show Tamino a portrait of Pamina, the daughter of the Queen of the Night. Tamino immediately falls in love with the girl in the picture. When the Queen of the Night appears, she promises Pamina will be his if he will free her from the evil Sarastro. Tamino agrees to set off on the quest along with Papageno. The Ladies give Tamino a magic flute and Papageno a set of magic bells to aid them in their journey. Then, led by three genies, the two men set off to find Sarastro's kingdom.

When they arrive, they are separated. Papageno finds Pamina, and Tamino is faced with a temple that is looked after by the Speaker. In fact, he finds out from the Speaker that Sarastro is not the evil man the Queen of the Night described, but a high priest who is protecting Pamina from her mother, who is filled with ambition to dominate the world.

Meanwhile, Pamina and Papageno are captured by the evil servant Monostatos. When Tamino is brought into the presence of Sarastro, Monostatos enters with his "prisoners," Pamina and Papageno. Tamino sees Pamina for the first time, and they immediately fall in love. Monostatos, on the other hand, is punished for his presumption. As the act ends, Tamino agrees to undergo a set of trials in order to gain admission to Sarastro's order and win Pamina for his own.

Act II

Sarastro meets with The Order in a secret meeting room within the temple. There, he and his followers instruct Tamino and Papageno about tests they will face on their journey toward enlightenment. The first test is "Silence." Tamino and Papageno are forbidden to speak. Tamino is taken to face Pamina but is required to remain silent, even though, in desperation, Pamina begs him to speak to her. Tamino is tempted by luscious food and threatened by the Queen's Three Ladies, yet he resists. On the other hand, Papageno is not so strong, and when he meets an old woman, he fails to recognize that it is Papagena—the girl of his dreams. As she is chased away, Papageno runs off, trying in vain to catch her. Meanwhile, Pamina is forlorn when her mother, the Queen of the Night appears and orders her to kill Sarastro. Monostatos, seeing Pamina's dilemma, attempts to use her troubles as a means of seducing her. Sarastro arrives in time to drive Monostatos away. Then, knowing what Pamina has been asked to do, he explains to her that in his kingdom, there is no room for hate or revenge. Pamina confronts him but to no avail. Unable to carry out her mother's order, Pamina is left more depressed than before and considers killing herself. She is stopped just in time by the three genies, who explain that Tamino needs her.

Tamino is now ready to face the last two tests, "Fire" and "Water." Unsure of how to begin, Pamina arrives, and with her leading, they pass through the trials. Their victory causes a cosmic shift, which will have ripple effects throughout the land.

Papageno, however, is totally downhearted at having lost his Papagena and is considering suicide, when the three genies show up once again and remind him to use magic bells. Papagena appears, and the two love birds are united with visions of happy marriage and many children.

The Queen of the Night arrives at Sarastro's temple, furious at having been thwarted by him. She attempts to attack the temple aided by the Three Ladies and her new ally, Monostatos. In the end, an eclipse occurs, and Sarastro and his Order of Men along with the Queen and her followers realize that something has changed. Tamino and Pamina lead them toward a new state of enlightenment that embraces equity and equality among all people!

Ph.D. Musicology Student

One of history's most morally ambiguous operas, The Coronation of Poppea brims with contradiction. Together, librettist Giovanni Francesco Busenello and composer Claudio Monteverdi blur the boundaries between good and evil. In Poppea, desire clouds rational judgment. As a result, audiences may find themselves struggling with the dichotomy between the opera's moral lessons and its music's beauty. We recognize the protagonists' actions as reprehensible yet are intoxicated by their music. Despite ourselves, we desire to see their love fulfilled and cannot help but feel satisfied by Nero and Poppea's ultimate union, though we are also disconcerted by the devastation it has left in its wake.

The Coronation of Poppea was written for the 1643 Venetian opera season. Monteverdi uses the combination of noble, speech-like recitative and lyrical, song-like aria to shape the personalities of the characters and to reveal intentions hidden behind the text. The dialogue between the opera's main characters, Poppea and Nero, is almost exclusively in song, rather than recitative. The combination of lyricism, pacing, and chromaticism charges their musical themes with a sense of eroticism that emphasizes the lovers', especially Poppea's, sensuality. Thus, the audience is as entranced by song as Nero is by Poppea.

We can contrast Poppea's music with that of her rival, Nero's wife, Octavia. Abandoned by love, she is one of the most complex characters in the opera. Her conflicting emotions and motivations express themselves almost exclusively in turbulent recitative. Unlike her historical counterpart, in the opera, she is both victim and villain. Recitative's declamatory style best expresses her reaction to events outside her control. After being discarded by Nero, Octavia laments being a scorned queen and makes a shockingly blunt feminist statement against men's tyranny. Later, she will plot to murder Poppea. Significantly, one of the few moments in which she sings lyrically occurs in the second stanza of "Disprezzata Regina." While singing about Poppea, she embodies her rival's intoxicating sensuality before returning to alternating states of despair and rage. Octavia is the dramatic opposite to the proactive and seductive Poppea, and so it follows that she is also the lyrical enchantress's musical antithesis.

The opera opens with a conflict between Cupid and rival gods Virtue and Fortune, and, initially, we are led to believe that the message of the opera is the triumph of love. However, we are soon met with the duplicity of love's victory. At least four lives are taken during the course of the opera preceding Poppea and Nero's marriage. Furthermore, seventeenth-century audiences would have known the cruel fate awaiting Poppea just a few years afterward. The confounding message of the opera is mostly the product of the librettist, Giovanni Francesco Busenello, an active member of the prominent Venetian intellectual group, the Accademia degli Incogniti. The Incogniti maintained a philosophy of strict skepticism, interrogating the existence of God and Christian morality. Members of the Incogniti chose to live a libertine lifestyle, reveling in earthly pleasures and moral ambivalence. Reading the libretto from their perspective helps us to understand the opera's unabashed, albeit contradictory, celebration of sensual passion.

One of the core conventions of the Incogniti was a mistrust of appearances, especially beauty, which masks a person's true inner reality. To quote a member, the Venetian historian Simone Luzzatto, "The human soul is made up of a mosaic, which appears to form a single idea, and on closer inspection, shows itself to be made up of various fragments of small stones . . ." Busenello employs the mosaic analogy in crafting the characters of Poppea.

One such multifaceted character is Nero's advisor, Seneca. Although supposedly the voice of virtue, other characters refer to him in negative or mocking terms; the guards describe him as a sly opportunist, and Nero dismisses him as a madman. Even more disparagingly, as an advisor, he is impotent, and his counsel is repeatedly ignored. Monteverdi's music, however, reveals a certain sympathy for the philosopher. Seneca's song in Act 2, Scene 1, "L'uscir di vita è una beata sorte," is saturated with musical pathos. Musicologist Ellen Rosen says this song "shifts into triple meter and a beautifully arched stepwise melodic line of successively smaller curves descends to a cadence, sealing Seneca's happy acceptance of his fate and emphasizing his union with the gods." Furthermore, at his death, Seneca's followers sing a lament so highly imbued with chromaticism, a musical trope traditionally associated with serious expressive intent, it communicates genuine mourning. Despite his reputation, by accepting his death, Seneca finally puts into practice the stoicism he preached. This music's sincerity reflects an alignment between the philosopher and his philosophy. However, the ensuing trio, derived from an earlier madrigal, has an inappropriate canzonetta-like tone. His followers' liveliness contradicts Seneca's sincerity and repudiates his stoic teachings, implying that Seneca's counsel for virtue over desire has once again gone unheeded.

Early opera was a collaborative genre; evidence suggests that Monteverdi's contemporaries contributed to the piece, treating it as a living document as opposed to an unchangeable work. To this point, although sources indicate it is not Monteverdi's own composition, the opera closes with the deliciously sensuous duet between Poppea and Nero, "Pur ti miro, pur ti godo." The yearning dissonances between the interweaving voices are set over a simple descending bass line, depicting their adoration for and erotic infatuation with one another. The duet encapsulates the essence of the opera: love is an intoxicating and sometimes disturbing force, which, when given power over reason, is capable of subjugating Virtue, Fortune, and in Poppea's case, all of Rome.

Laughter is infectious. And so, it seems, is Falstaff.

Sir John Falstaff is undoubtedly a grotesque figure. He drinks too much, eats too much, associates with thieves and lowlifes, schemes to seduce married women, and indulges in all manner of vice. His physicality and even bestiality are emphasized at every turn. The very first scene of the opera has him glorying in the fatness of his body, proclaiming that his belly is his kingdom and that he must enlarge it, to which his cronies Bardolph and Pistol exclaim, "Immense Falstaff! Enormous Falstaff!" Verdi's scoring calls attention to these constant references to thinness and fatness, heaviness and lightness: for example, in the same scene, he worries that he will become thin, and his vocal line is supported thinly with only a piccolo and a cello. The opera's characterization of him as animalistic continues even to the last scene, where Falstaff admits, after much torment from the other characters, "I begin to perceive that I am an ass," his vocal line imitating the braying of a donkey. What is more, for much of the opera, the old knight seems stubbornly unaware that he is not as attractive to others as he is to himself. In Act I, Scene 1, he believes that he can successfully woo both Alice Ford and Meg Page, but any confidence we might have in his plan is immediately dashed in Scene 2, where the women mock Falstaff's identical love letters to them and pledge to get their revenge. Even Falstaff's own sidekicks, it appears, are against him, as they enter later in the scene with the rest of the men, all of them hurling insults at the wicked Sir John.

But perhaps they protest too much. Despite everyone's insistence that Falstaff is unworthy of their love or respect, they are drawn more and more into his orbit as the opera goes on. If Falstaff is a grotesque figure of vice, his characteristics seem to infect everyone around him. He concocts schemes to gain access to Alice's and Meg's fortunes, prompting a series of even more elaborate schemes, from the women's entrapment of Falstaff in Act II to the masked double wedding in Act III. He treats his friends cruelly, but they respond by dumping him in the river in Act II and escalating to blows and insults in Act III. When Quickly flatters Falstaff in Act II, Scene 1, by saying, "You bewitch them all," we are expected to see the irony in her statement, yet in some sense it is true.

Then what is so bewitching about Falstaff? The answer can perhaps be found in the strange magical play-within-a-play of the third act. If the opera had ended after Act II, the plot could have been a passable domestic opera buffa of the previous century. But this is not just a comedy in the classical sense; it is a comedy steeped in the sensibilities of romanticism. Earlier in the century, dramatist Victor Hugo had argued that the grotesque and the sublime were really two sides of the same coin, both being ways of expressing a sense of something overwhelming and beyond ordinary experience, and that great drama arose from the interplay of both. He noted that Shakespeare's plays often combined both the beautiful and the ugly, the profound and the comic, in ways that anticipated romanticism.

What Falstaff has to offer, then, is enchantment, a glimpse of something outside the staid world of the everyday. In a wonderful moment at the beginning of Act III, poor Sir John is recovering from his spill into the river Thames and takes a first sip of warmed wine. He describes good wine as a trill that starts in the eyes, rises to the brain, and continues spreading until its madness unsettles the globe and invades the entire world. As he sings, a musical trill begins in the flutes, and then the violins, and one by one, each instrument joins in until the entire orchestra is alive with the trill. Like the trill, Falstaff's sublime grotesqueness may be madness, but it is nonetheless compelling.

The other characters fully succumb to this mad enchantment in the masquerade of the third act. Nannetta is dressed as the fairy queen, all in white, singing a lyrical melody accompanied by flute flourishes, harp arpeggios, and a female choir—musical signifiers of fairy tales. But these fairies are much more dangerous than they first appear. They quickly take on the musical tropes of the demonic side of the supernatural, including fast chromatic lines, a jangling triangle, and staccato triplet statements of “pizzica” (pinch) as they poke and prod at Falstaff. Yet all's well that ends well, and despite Falstaff's repeated humiliations, we cannot help but think that he has come out on top. After all conflicts have been resolved, Falstaff leads the company in a closing fugue, proclaiming, “All the world's a joke,” in a delightful twist on Shakespeare's line. Falstaff, like the trill, has invaded the world.

One could say that Falstaff's tricksterish influence extended even to the creation of the opera itself. The librettist Arrigo Boito schemed to convince the aging Verdi to write an opera derived from Shakespeare's The Merry Wives of Windsor by appealing to the composer's love of the English playwright and his as-yet-unfulfilled desire to write a comic opera. Verdi, whose fame in the operatic world was of Falstaffian dimensions, assented, but kept his work on the opera a secret until it could finally be revealed in full. As Verdi's final work, it seems right that its last line should be, “He who laughs last, laughs best.”

George Balanchine (1904-1983), Choreographer, Fall Ballet (“Donizetti Variations”) and Spring Ballet (“Agon Pas de Trois”).

Born in St. Petersburg, Russia, George Balanchine is regarded as the foremost contemporary choreographer in the world of ballet. He came to the United States in late 1933, at the age of 29, accepting the invitation of the young American arts patron Lincoln Kirstein (1907-96), whose great passions included the dream of creating a ballet company in America. At Balanchine’s behest, Kirstein was also prepared to support the formation of an American academy of ballet that would eventually rival the long-established schools of Europe. This was the School of American Ballet, founded in 1934, the first product of the Balanchine-Kirstein collaboration. Several ballet companies directed by the two were created and dissolved in the years that followed, while Balanchine found other outlets for his choreography. Eventually, with a performance on October 11, 1948, New York City Ballet was born. Balanchine served as its ballet master and principal choreographer from 1948 until his death in 1983. Balanchine’s more than 400 dance works include Serenade (1934), Concerto Barocco (1941), Le Palais de Cristal, later renamed Symphony in C (1947), Orpheus (1948), The Nutcracker (1954), Agon (1957), Symphony in Three Movements (1972), Stravinsky Violin Concerto (1972), Vienna Waltzes (1977), Ballo della Regina (1978), and Mozartiana (1981). His final ballet, a new version of Stravinsky’s Variations for Orchestra, was created in 1982. He also choreographed for films, operas, revues, and musicals. Among his best-known dances for the stage is “Slaughter on Tenth Avenue,” originally created for Broadway’s On Your Toes (1936). The musical was later made into a movie. A major artistic figure of the twentieth century, Balanchine revolutionized the look of classical ballet. Taking classicism as his base, he heightened, quickened, expanded, streamlined, and even inverted the fundamentals of the 400-year-old language of academic dance. This had an inestimable influence on the growth of dance in America. Although at first his style seemed particularly suited to the energy and speed of American dancers, especially those he trained, his ballets are now performed by all the major classical ballet companies throughout the world.

August Bournonville, Choreographer, Spring Ballet (“Bournonvilles Suite”).

August Bournonville, born in Copenhagen in 1805, was a dancer and choreographer who directed the Royal Danish Ballet for nearly 50 years and established the Danish style based on bravura dancing and expressive mime. He studied under his father, Antoine Bournonville, one of the major dancers of his day, before going to Paris for further training under August Vestris and Pierre Gardel. After appearances at the Paris Opera and in London, Bournonville returned to Copenhagen as a soloist and choreographer for the Royal Danish Ballet. A strong dancer with excellent elevation and an accomplished mime, he emphasized these qualities in his ballets. His choreographic style also reflected the pre-Romantic approach of his teacher Vestris. Many of his ballets have remained in the repertoire of the Royal Danish Ballet for more than a century. Bournonville also directed the Swedish Royal Opera at Stockholm (1861-64) and staged several of his works in Vienna (1855-56). In 1877, after his return to Denmark, he retired and was knighted. He died on November 30, 1879, in Copenhagen. (Portrait by Louis Aumont, 1828)

Michael Breeden, Stager, Fall Ballet (“In Creases”). Michael Sean Breeden trained at the School of American Ballet, San Francisco Ballet, and Central Pennsylvania Youth Ballet before joining Miami City Ballet in 2006. In the 12 years he danced with the company, he performed principal roles in the works of George Balanchine, Jerome Robbins, Justin Peck, Alexei Ratmansky, Twyla Tharp, Paul Taylor, and Liam Scarlett.

Breeden also performed with Boston Ballet, Suzanne Farrell Ballet, Oregon Ballet Theatre, and Pennsylvania Ballet. In 2016, he started the podcast Conversations on Dance with cohost Rebecca King Ferraro. The podcast has enjoyed residencies at the Vail Dance Festival, Kennedy Center, and San Francisco Ballet, and now has more than 100 episodes. In 2018, Breeden began to stage the works of Justin Peck at companies around the world.

and vocal coach at the Conservatorio Musical de Alajuela, Escuela de Artes Musicales de la Universidad de Costa Rica, and Universidad Nacional in Costa Rica. In addition to her duties at the Jacobs School, she maintains a private studio as a freelance coach, collaborator, and piano teacher. She is founder and director of Reimagining Opera for Kids, a music community engagement and education program based in Bloomington, Indiana. He began his ballet training at the Conservatoire de la Monnaie. In 1978, he came to New York on scholarship to the School of American Ballet and the American Ballet Theatre School. After graduating, he performed with the Kansas City Ballet and Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre. In 1984, he returned to Europe as a member of the Dutch National Ballet. As a soloist, Claessens toured internationally with Stars of the American Ballet, Stars of the New York City Ballet, Stars of the Hong Kong Ballet, and Kozlov and Friends. In 1991, he cofounded the Scarsdale Ballet Studio with Diana White. In 1999, he codirected the International Ballet Project with Valentina Kozlova and White, both of New York City Ballet. In 1998, he took over the directorship of the Purchase Youth Ballet. He was the director of La Leçon: Christian Claessens School of Ballet in Westchester, New York.

Emmet Cohen, Piano, Jazz Celebration. Multifaceted American jazz pianist and composer Emmet Cohen is one of his generation's pivotal figures in music and the related arts. DownBeat magazine praised the "nimble touch, measured stride, and warm harmonic vocabulary" he employs to communicate with other musicians and audiences at what he terms "the deepest level of humanity and individuality." Leader of the Emmet Cohen Trio and creator of the Masters Legacy Series, Cohen is an internationally acclaimed jazz artist and dedicated music educator. He is the winner of the 2019 American Pianists Awards and the Cole Porter Fellow of the American Pianists Association. He is also an artist-in-residence at the University of Indianapolis and was a finalist in the 2011 Thelonious Monk International Piano Competition. Cohen has appeared at major international jazz festivals, Lincoln Center's Rose Hall, and Washington's Kennedy Center, and has headlined at the Village Vanguard and other major New York City jazz clubs. For many years, he was Hammond B-3 Organist-in-Residence at Harlem's SMOKE jazz club. During the COVID-19 lockdown, he created Live from Emmet's Place, a weekly livestream that received millions of internet views worldwide. A Suzuki piano student at age three, Cohen earned jazz piano degrees from the Manhattan School of Music (M.M.) and the University of Miami (B.M.). A Mack Avenue artist, he has performed, recorded, or collaborated with Ron Carter, Benny Golson, Jimmy Cobb, George Coleman, Jimmy Heath, Tootie Heath, Houston Person, Christian McBride, Kurt Elling, Billy Hart, Herlin Riley, Lea DeLaria, and Bill T. Jones.

Marzio Conti, Conductor, Falstaff and The Nutcracker. Music director of the Oviedo Philharmonic (OFIL) from 2011 to 2017, Marzio Conti received recognition and the acclaim of audiences and critics for his achievements in guiding the growth of the orchestra to new artistic heights, notably with OFIL's recordings of the complete symphonic works of Saint-Saëns for Warner Classics. Conti has earned numerous awards and has been named a juror for the arts prize of the prestigious Premios Asturias. Among his generation's leading exponents of the flute, Conti performed with major orchestras and made numerous recordings through the mid-1990s, after which he devoted himself to conducting. A student of Piero Bellugi, Conti quickly received engagements as a permanent director of various Italian and foreign orchestras. He conducts both opera and the symphonic repertoire and collaborates with leading international dance companies as well as major soloists. Conti has appeared as a guest conductor throughout Europe at such notable venues as the Rome Opera, Theater Dortmund, and London's Wigmore Hall. He has conducted numerous orchestras, including Orchestra Haydn, Orquesta de la Comunidad de Madrid, Brandenburger Symphoniker, Korean National Symphony Orchestra, and Haifa Symphony Orchestra (Israel), to name a few. He has collaborated with a host of soloists, including Barbara Hendricks, Bryn Terfel, Misha Maisky, Midori, Lin Harrell, Sabine Meyer, and Jean-Pierre Rampal. Through recordings, broadcast media, and live performance, Conti has worked to develop the profile and quality of several institutions. Before his work with OFIL, he was principal conductor at the Istituzione Sinfonica Abruzzese (1998-2002), music director of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Turin (2001-04), music director of the Teatro di Tradizione per l'Opera Italiana of Chieti (2003-08), and artistic director of the Orchestra Sinfonica di Sanremo (2004-10). When he stepped down as OFIL's music director, the city of Oviedo awarded Conti the Gold Medal of the Auditorium Prince Felipe in recognition of his extraordinary contributions. Since 2014, he has collaborated as guest conductor and visiting professor with the Indiana University Jacobs School of Music.

Brian Eads, Conductor, H.M.S. Pinafore. Brian Eads' guest conducting credits include the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, Mississippi Symphony Orchestra, North Mississippi Symphony Orchestra, Princeton Festival Orchestra, and Lima Symphony Orchestra. His orchestral arrangements have been performed by the Indianapolis Chamber Orchestra and Chorus, Madison Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra, Nashville Symphony Orchestra, and Chicago Symphony Orchestra. He earned his Master of Music in Orchestral Conducting from Florida State University and his Bachelor of Music in Piano Performance from Delta State University. Eads is the current music director and conductor of the Les Misérables North American Tour.

Karina Elver, Stager, Spring Ballet (“Bournonvilles Suite”). Karina Elver was born in 1962 in Copenhagen, Denmark. She began to dance at the age of three, and at age nine, was accepted as a ballet student at the Royal Danish Ballet School. In 1978, she was accepted as an apprentice at the Royal Danish Ballet (RDB), and after two years, she became a dancer there. At RDB, she had many solo parts in several ballets by August Bournonville, Balanchine, Alvin Ailey, and many more. In 1992, she started to create her own choreography. In 2003, after a wonderful career of 32 years, she decided to leave the Royal Danish Theatre to work as a freelance ballet teacher/choreographer/repetiteur and Bournonville specialist. Since 2011, Elver has been working in New York and across the United States, teaching and staging Bournonville ballets.

Candace Evans, Stage Director, The Coronation of Poppea. Candace Evans is pleased to return to IU Jacobs School of Music Opera Theater, where her new production of Florenzia en el Amazonas went on to San Diego Opera to be acclaimed as “best illustrating the composer’s intent.” Akhmaten, which she also directed at IU Jacobs Opera, was honored to be named “definitive” by the Philip Glass organization. At the legendary Teatro Colón, her La Viuda Alegre was named in the top three operas of the entire Argentinian season. Internationally praised for “a flawless sense of timing” (Opera News), whose work is “genuine gripping drama” (Opera Now), Evans is known for the kind of incisive storytelling she created when she wrote the libretto for Wisdom of Stone, which she also directed, for OperaVision Europe during the pandemic. Her own performance career included international acting tours, dancing with the Wisconsin Ballet Company, singing with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, and national voice-over credits. This combination of talent illustrates why her directorial style includes the integration of musical intent, dramatic truth, and the physical life of performers. Committed to working with young artists at least once annually, she has collaborated with Yale, Carnegie Mellon, Taos Opera Institute, Oberlin, Seagle Festival, La Musica Lirica, and Shenandoah University. Past professional engagements include Dallas Opera, Santa Fe, Arizona, North Carolina, Palm Beach, Madison, and Fort Worth, as well as international tours with the Montefeltro Festival.

at the Vienna State Opera, in addition to performances at the Metropolitan Opera, Staatsoper Berlin Deutsche Oper Berlin, Munich State Opera, and many more. On the concert podium, he has appeared with numerous internationally known orchestras. Fagen has an opera repertoire of more than 75 works. He has served as principal conductor in Kassel and Brunswick, as chief conductor of the Flanders Opera of Antwerp and Ghent, as music director of the Queens Symphony Orchestra, and as a member of the conducting staff of Lyric Opera of Chicago. He and the Dortmund Philharmonic were invited to the Concertgebouw in Amsterdam, the Palais de Beaux Arts in Brussels, and to Salzburg, Beijing, and Shanghai. Fagen conducted a new production of Turandot at The Atlanta Opera in 2007, opening the season and inaugurating the new opera house, the Cobb Energy Performing Arts Center. He was a regular guest conductor of the Munich Radio Orchestra and guest conducted the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande, Deutsche Kammerphilharmonie, Schleswig-Holstein Festival, and many others. He was first-prize winner of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra Conductors Competition as well as a prizewinner of the Gino Marinuzzi International Conductors' Competition in Italy. Fagen has recorded for BMG, Bayerischer Rundfunk, SFB, and WDR Cologne. He records regularly for Naxos, for which he has completed the six symphonies of Bohuslav Martinů. Fagen's Naxos recording of Martinů's piano concertos was awarded an Editor's Choice award in the March 2010 issue of Gramophone magazine.

William Forrester, Set Designer, La Rondine. Previously for IU Jacobs School of Music Opera Theater, William Forrester designed The Most Happy Fella, La Rondine, Der Rosenkavalier, The Merry Widow, and South Pacific. The youngest of a large mixed-race family from Severn, Maryland, he earned a Bachelor of Music in Violin Performance from The Juilliard School and, in 2003, a conducting degree from the Curtis Institute of Music, where he studied with Otto-Werner Mueller. Grams served as assistant conductor of The Cleveland Orchestra from 2004 to 2007, where he worked under the guidance of Franz Welser-Möst. From 2014 to 2020, Grams served as music director of the Elgin Symphony Orchestra. He was the winner of 2015 Conductor of the Year from the Illinois Council of Orchestras and has led orchestras throughout the United States, including the Houston Symphony, Minnesota Orchestra, National Symphony Orchestra, Philadelphia Orchestra, and the symphony orchestras of Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, Dallas, Detroit, and St. Louis. Abroad, he has worked with symphony orchestras of Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Sydney, Melbourne, Barcelona, and New Zealand, among many others. He has led multiple performances of New York City Ballet's George Balanchine's The Nutcracker® and the first performances of the new production of The Nutcracker for the Norwegian National Ballet in Oslo. Also an educator, Grams has worked with orchestras at institutions such as the Curtis Institute of Music, Cleveland Institute of Music, Indiana University, Roosevelt University, National Orchestral Institute at the University of Maryland, and Amsterdam Conservatory. An accomplished violinist, he was a member of the New York City Ballet Orchestra from 1998 to 2004, serving as acting associate principal second violin in 2002 and 2004. Grams has also performed with such ensembles as the Orpheus Chamber Orchestra, Orchestra of St. Luke's, Brooklyn Philharmonic, and the New Jersey Symphony, as well as with chamber music ensembles around the country.
